

Five general phases of planning for UN mission and post-conflict peacebuilding support

Because planning timeframes differ from mission to mission, it is not practical to ascribe chronological time periods to the five phases. What is important is the sequence of planning stages, as well as how they correspond to the main stages of transitions from conflict to peace and sustainable development.

